THE MORNING NEWS

WASHINGTON.

The Retirement of Army Officers.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The subject of compulsory retirement, which has created so much interest in army circles, will probably be acted upon by the Senate next week. A number of petitions signed by more than a thousand army officers have been referred to this committee in favor of compulsory retirement at the age of 62 and if the subject is referred to this committee, officers will be invited to come forward and give the committee their views on the subject. This matter would have been settled ere this, perhaps, if Senator Logan had not been absent. He will return Monday next, and it is more than probable that the matter will be finally disposed of by the end of next week.

The Unfinished Monitors.

The Secretary of the Navy, Engineer-in-Chief Shreck and Naval Constructor Wilson leave Washington in a few days to visit Wilmington and Philadelphia for the purpose of inspecting the unfinished monitors in the private shipyards at those places. The secretary is desirous of seeing for himself the exact condition of these monitors before the appropriation committee take any steps toward recommending an appropriation for the purpose.

Death of Rear Admiral Rodgers.

Rear Admiral John Rodgers, who has been suffering acutely for some weeks from Bright's disease, died at his residence on Georgetown Heights at 8 o'clock this evening. Admiral Rodgers was 70 years of age and has been for a number of years superintendent of the Naval Observatory at Washington.

Supreme Court Reorganization.

The committee appointed by the American Bar Association to consider the subject of a reorganization of the United States Supreme Court, have finished their work, and will, it is understood, make public shortly three separate reports. Four members of the committee, namely, Messrs. E. J. Phelps, Courtland T. Parker, William E. Evarts and Richard T. Merrick, have agreed upon a report which recommends the division of the court into two chambers or sections, each to be composed of such justices and to have jurisdiction of such cases as the court may agree upon. No increase in the number of justices is thought necessary.

Notes.

The expectation tonight is that a vote on the tariff commission bill will be reached tomorrow. The belief is that three or four Republicans will vote against it, and about thirty Democrats for it.

A despatch from Captain Pearson, commanding the United States steamer Wachusett, at Sitka, Alaska, reports affairs quiet in that territory and the health of officers and men good.

Colonel D. B. Henderson, of Dubuque, Ia., was unanimously elected secretary of the Republican Congressional campaign committee last night.

Commissioner Loring intends to improve the Bureau of Forestry connected with the Department of Agriculture.

FOREIGN.

Lieutenant Danenhower's Misfortune.

LONDON, May 5.—The Standard's St. Petersburg despatch says Lieutenant Danenhower's eyes are so badly affected that he has been advised to postpone his departure from that city for a few days in order to consult an oculist, as it is feared continuing his journey would risk the complete loss of his eyesight.

The Russian Jews.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 5.—At a meeting of a committee of ministers on Wednesday, General Ignatieff recommended the adoption of measures calculated to accelerate the emigration of Jews. A vote was taken on the proposal and it was unanimously rejected. General Ignatieff became greatly excited and quitted the assembly.

The Haven for the Oppressed.

LONDON, May 6.—A despatch to the Times from Berlin says Secretary Frelinghuysen's despatch to Mr. Hoffman in regard to the treatment of Russian Jews has produced a most favorable impression in Liberal circles. The United States is hailed as having taken the place of England as the champion of the down-trodden and oppressed.

The New Irish Secretary.

LONDON, May 5.—The Pall Mall Gazette says that the Irish and Scotch provincial press is, for once, in almost entire harmony with the London papers in surprise and dismay at the selection of Lord Frederick Cavendish as chief secretary of Ireland. The disappointment among the Liberals is wide-spread. The choice, it says, was undoubtedly made to quiet the apprehensions of the Whigs, but the only thing that can save the ministry is that the country shall be convinced that they mean to carry out their new policy firmly and without reference to the murmur of a handful of malcontents.

Condensed Telegrams.

The three-year-old child of William T. Early, of Beverly, Mass., died yesterday, from the supposed effect of getting vermin poison into his mouth.

Advices from the Magdalen Islands state that the fishing fleet is unable to leave there, owing to the ice, which stretches as far as the eye can reach.

Major Wm. J. Twining, of the Engineer Corps, U. S. A., one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, died in Washington yesterday, of pneumonia.

Base ball yesterday—at Worcester—Providence, 17; Worcester, 2. Boston—Troy, 4; Boston, 1. At Buffalo—Buffalo, 4; Detroit, 3. At Cleveland—Chicago, 7; Cleveland, 6.

United States District Attorney Valentine states that the government will be ready to try the Star route cases at the term of court opening on 22d. He has instructions to oppose any further delay.

It is announced that previous to the proving of Longfellow's will, the heirs pledged themselves to carry out its plain intent regardless of any legal formalities. The poet's brother, Samuel, will, therefore, receive the legacy of $5000, and each of the children of the latter $1000, notwithstanding the fact that the bequests were made by interlineations in the will, which were declared by the Probate Court to be without binding force.

The Beaver line steamship, Lake Manitoba, from Liverpool, which arrived in Quebec yesterday afternoon, is the first arrival from sea this season. She passed 150 miles of ice outside and 100 miles inside Cape Race, and was detained four days in it. She saw two steamers and one ship in the ice, to the southward of Cape Race, but could not make them out. Lake Manitoba reports that she passed more than 100 immense icebergs between Cape Pine and St. Peters.

A fire in the Sharon and Walpole woods in Massachusetts has burned over 1000 acres of woodland and destroyed a large lot of railroad sleepers and telegraph poles owned by Richard Morse, and cut wood and small trees owned by other parties.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

The new Catholic theological building on the old Stanwood estate on Lake street, Brighton, is to cost half a million dollars. It will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1883.

The will of Emily P. Hiddon, of Medway, Mass., bequeathes $2000 to Wellesley College for a scholarship, $1000 to the New England Hospital for Women and Children at Boston, $100 to the American Seaman's Friend Society of New York, and, after the death of a legatee, $3000 to Dartmouth College to establish the "E. N. Hiddon scholarship" in memory of the testator's father.

The attempt to start a Methodist journal in Philadelphia has been abandoned.

It is proposed to consolidate the five Methodist churches in Brooklyn, N. Y., and form three congregations and build two new churches.

Bishop Whipple, of Minnesota, is so short of men in his diocese that he says he means to license two women as lay readers. They are authorized to read the services, and such sermons as the bishop may put into their hands.

The General Minutes of the Methodist Episcopal Church South give these statistics for 1881:—Travelling preachers, 3704; supernumerated preachers, 397; local preachers, 5805; white members, 844,367; colored members, 993; Indian members, 5451; total ministers and members, 860,687, being an increase last year of 12,984; Sunday schools, 9310; teachers, 62,442; scholars, 462,321—increase last year, 21,707.

Bishop Green, of Mississippi, who has been presiding over a council of the Episcopal Church in Vicksburg, is eighty-four years old and has been a preacher sixty-two years. He is now, and has been for thirteen years past, the chancellor of the University of the South, and is the sole survivor of the ten Southern bishops who founded that institution in 1860. His mental faculties are still remarkably vigorous for one of his age.

There are Baptist churches in each of the thirty-eight states, in the District of Columbia, in the Indian territory and in seven out of the eight organized territories, Montana being the exception. The total shows 1155 associations, containing 26,372 churches, with an aggregate membership of 2,336,022. The number of baptisms reported last year was 82,570. There are 16,514 ordained ministers. The Sunday schools are 14,473 with 120,678 officers and teachers, and 1,036,412 scholars. The reason for the number of schools being so much below that of the churches is that in the South and in some parts of the West there is a great deficiency of Sunday schools; but there is improvement in this respect. Thus, Arkansas, with 1143 churches, reported only 109 Sunday schools last year, but 250 this year; and Illinois, with 915 churches, reported 530 schools last year and 650 this year. There are eight Baptist theological institutions, with 41 instructors and 447 students. The number of colleges and universities under Baptist influence is 33, with 295 instructors and 4600 students, of whom 557 have the ministry in view. There are 42 Baptist newspapers published weekly in various parts of the country, besides a number of monthlies and Sunday-school papers.

Niagara Falls are to be utilized in the production of electrical power. The water power of the entire American Falls is estimated at 2,000,000 horse power, or a force equal to that of 12,000,000 men. After generating the electricity by this unlimited hydraulic force, it is to be conducted through properly insulated cases to sixty-five prominent American cities and towns for illuminating purposes, and is also to be used for operating machinery and ultimately for heating purposes. Provided the project is carried out there will be 10,000 miles of copper cables with machinery to correspond.

DR. FRAZIER'S ROOT BITTERS.

The above wonderful medicine is, as its name indicates, strictly a Bitters or Blood Cleanser, made from roots, combined with herbs and plants, such as are found in Nature's garden. I first used Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters myself for weakness of the lungs, catarrh and scrofula in the system, which broke out in pimples and blotches, and after doctoring with physicians and trying advertised medicines (including Sarsaparilla) without finding relief my discovery effected a complete cure. Frazier's Root Bitters are not a dram shop whiskey beverage, but are strictly medical in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nervous and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity. For dizziness, rush of blood to the head tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused from imprudence and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as ever I did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest of blessings. MRS. M. MARTIN, Cleveland, O.

JEANNETTE AND RODGERS.

Death of Commander DeLong and Followers.

Discovery of Their Remains.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Secretary Chandler received tonight the following telegram from Engineer Melville:—

IRKUTSK, May 7.

Secretary of the Navy, Washington, D. C., U. S. A.:—

"LENA DELTA, March 24, 1882.

Found DeLong and party dead. Found all papers and books. Continue search for Chipp. MELVILLE."

NEW YORK, May 6.—The Herald has the following:—

IRKUTSK, May 5, Morning.—The following despatch has just been received here by special courier from Mr. Jackson, the Herald correspondent, on his way north to the mouth of the Lena:—

FORTY MILES BEYOND KENCHACH, April 12, 1882.—A Cossack, Estafette, special express, has just arrived here with despatches, bringing the news that the bodies of Capt. DeLong and ten men have been found all in one spot. He takes sealed despatches, which you will receive with this. D. JACKSON.

Thirty of the Rodgers' Crew Perish.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 6.—Mr. Hoffman has received a telegram signed Captain Berry, from Kolynsk, Northeast Siberia, stating that thirty of the thirty-seven persons on board the Rodgers were lost.

PERSONALS.

.....Emerson's estate is valued at about $200,000.

.....Lieutenant Danenhower will leave Russia for New York on the 6th inst.

.....John L. Lenan, "the drummer-boy of Chickamauga," has been appointed captain and assistant-quartermaster.

.....James Gordon Bennett, it is said, is going to Washington next week with his new yacht, and will take President Arthur on a pleasure trip down the Potomac.

.....Mrs. Esther A. Cooley, of Bingham, Me., has received a commission from Governor Plaisted to solemnize marriages, administer oaths and take acknowledgments of deeds.

.....General "Abe" Buford, the converted turfman, of Kentucky, in a speech in church the other night, lamented the morals of the turf, and said pool-selling had degraded a sport which, properly conducted, was entirely compatible with earnest Christianity.

.....A Philadelphia boy, now twelve years old, was named for Ralph Waldo Emerson. Mr. Emerson was informed of the fact and given a picture of the child, and he sent back a set of his books and a sealed letter to be opened upon the occasion of his namesake's twenty-first birthday.

.....Madame Mackay gave a musicale in Paris a few weeks ago, when Faure, Van Zandt and other notables were present, at a cost of at least five thousand francs. Among the guests were the American minister, Mr. Morton, and his wife, Meissonier, Cabanal, Bonnat and other notabilities.

.....John R. Lynch, the colored representative from Mississippi, who has succeeded to General Chalmers's seat in Congress, first became known to the country by a wonderful impromptu speech which he delivered at the Philadelphia convention of 1872. One of its most effective passages was an apostrophe to Gerrit Smith, who sat as a member of the New York delegation.

THE LATTER-DAY SAINTS.

The anti-polygamy Mormons call themselves the reorganized church of latter-day saints. Their annual conference has been held recently at Independence, Missouri, from which place, as the Saints' Herald announces, their people were driven in 1838. The delegate vote was nearly seven hundred, so the gathering was a considerable affair. The list of branches by states is an interesting exhibit. Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut have quite a number of congregations. The Boston branch reports fifty-two members. The Massachusetts district has nine branches, and five hundred and forty-nine members. In 1865 there were but eight members. The official catalogue assigns to this state twenty-nine elders, twenty-one priests, eighteen teachers and sixteen deacons. One of the seventy is also in Massachusetts. The rank of officials is as follows:—First presidents, apostles, high priests, the seventy, elders and priests. The conference adopted resolutions of thanks to President Arthur, and those members of Congress who supported the Edmunds bill, since these Mormons believe that polygamy is a crime and not a religion.—[Boston Advertiser.

JUPITER AND VENUS.

As we look at these planets, now apparently lying so near together, it is hard to realize the enormous distance which in reality separates them. Venus is now nearly 100 millions of miles from the earth, and Jupiter 591 millions of miles. Because they are seen in the same general direction from the earth they seem to be near each other, while they are really separated by a portion of space 431 million miles in breadth. In size, density, and force of gravity, Venus differs but little from the earth. Its day is also about the same length as our own, and is supposed to have a dense, cloudy atmosphere. True, the heat and light of Venus are nearly twice as great as what the earth enjoys, but the clouds may serve to mitigate the heat to some degree. Then the great inclination of the axis subjects the poles to extreme changes of temperature, so that it seems possible that a family from the earth, by doing considerable travelling in the course of the year, might live with comparative comfort on Venus. But the condition of Jupiter as a dwelling place absolutely defies the imagination. In moments of poetic and astronomical elevation of spirit, we are apt to speak of the dignity and majesty of the mighty and slow-moving planet, forgetting that Jupiter is of about the same consistency as molasses, a substance somewhat remote from dignity of any kind. Jupiter is mighty in size, that must be granted; but when we try to imagine the soft, unwieldy mass whirling along at the rate of eight miles a second, our notion of majesty is hopelessly lost, and we abandon the effort to fancy to ourselves the nature of the inhabitants of such a world. It is far more satisfactory to think of Jupiter as at present an object of strictly scientific interest, which, like most other objects in nature, is beautiful to behold, but which cannot yet be rightly made an inspiration of the poetic muse. And in regard to the inhabitants, there seems to be no reason why we should not think that Jupiter is at present in one of the early stages of formation which the earth went through with long ago, and that ages in the future Jupiter may be, like the earth, fitted for the abode of men.—[Prov. Press.

A funny bit of far west journalism:—Mr. Brodie, of Pittsburg, Pa., is the possessor of a pet monkey. Mr. Brodie gets the Times at this city, and also the Boomerang. When the pet from the tropics is told to bring either of these papers to Mr. Brodie's mother, he knows which is which, and brings the one desired. When he gets the Times for the old lady, however, he very thoughtfully brings her spectacles also. This shows that even the brute creation can distinguish between a clear, legible print and that which is the reverse. We do not make any comment on this little incident, but simply give the bare facts. When a paper gets so dim, typographically and editorially, that a bob-tail baboon from a heathen land begins to notice it, there ought to be a reform.—[Laramie Boomerang.

Colonel Ingersoll's department in the Star-route trials—offering to wager $1000 with the opposing counsel that Dorsey is not guilty, and calling Colonel Bliss "a liar, sir; a liar"—no doubt measures both his personal character and his argumentative style very completely. Unqualling audacity and absolute disregard of the decencies which most men respect form his stock in trade. That such a man can invariably fill our largest places of assemblage with an enthusiastic auditory is of little credit to Boston.—[Transcript.

All the condemned bronze guns have been appropriated for monumental purposes. There now remains on hand 50 wrought iron, 774 cast iron and 48 of steel.

The Newport Daily News is published every afternoon (Sundays excepted), at the News building, 197 Thames street, by Davis & Pitman.

The Newport Journal is published at the same office every Saturday morning and contains a selection of the best matter in the Daily, including editorial discussions of the topics of the week, literary miscellanies and at least one good story, and a complete and comprehensive summary of news—local and general. The Journal is a large 36-column paper and contains a large amount of reading matter that is valuable to readers in town or country who desire a good Newport paper, but who do not take a daily from the city.

Complaints regarding the irregular or improper delivery of either paper should be sent to the office at once.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

The Daily News, $6 per annum, or 12 cents a week payable to carrier.

The Newport Journal will be sent to any address in the United States, postage paid, for $2 a year. A discount of 50 cents is made when the whole year is paid strictly in advance. These terms are invariable.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Ordinary advertisements, $1 a square, for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, in this type, make a square. Advertisements in reading matter are charged for, at 50 per cent. extra and are subject to editorial revision. A discount on these rates is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for one week or longer.

Notices of births, marriages and funerals 50 cents each.

Yearly advertisers are limited to their immediate business, are guaranteed but five insertions in a week and are allowed twenty-five changes a year.

The circulations of the News and Journal being necessarily distinct, an advertisement inserted in both papers will reach entirely different sets of readers. As further inducement for advertisers to use both News and Journal, a liberal discount on the combined rates is made.

PRINTING.

The News has four steam presses and is a large and well appointed job printing office. All orders for work in this department will be promptly filled, and at reasonable prices. The patronage of the public is respectfully solicited.

SATURDAY, MAY 6, 1882.

It remains to be seen whether Congress or the "whiskey ring" has this country in charge.

Thirty thousand persons are said to have visited the musical festival in New York this week.

Philadelphia has a surplus of $1,360,553 in the city treasury and it is now proposed to use the money for permanent improvements.

Lieutenant Berry, commander of the ill-fated Rodgers, telegraphs to Secretary Chandler that thirty of his crew of thirty-seven perished in the burning ship.

The Malley boys are growing "serious." They were both impudent and jolly at the previous examination. It looks as if there was occasion for a change such as is now reported.

A special train in Canada, having Mr. William K. Vanderbilt on board, has made one hundred and eleven miles in one hundred and nine minutes running time. This may well be called fast going.

The northern Democrats must face the music.—[Charleston News and Courier.] But they will probably have some voice in the selection of the tunes.—[Boston Post.] The Rogues' March for instance.

There is a continued decrease in the number of failures in this country. Last week there were only ninety, a decrease of 9 from the preceding week and a decrease of 20 from the corresponding week last year.

It has been stated that Dorsey, who ran away from Washington when the indictments were brought in in the Star route cases, would return in time for the trial, but it is now generally thought that he will do his best to keep out of the way. Dorsey is not so eager to have his trial as he was some months ago.

The Secretary of the Navy states that it will cost $3,173,000 to repair and put in condition the thirty vessels which need repairing and are fit to be repaired. It will take from two to eighteen months to put them in order, and by the time these are ready the remaining vessels will need something done to them. Let us by all means have the navy restored to usefulness.

The steamer Crystal Wave, belonging to the Continental Steamboat Company, and now running on the route between Bridgeport and New York, met with an accident to her engine Thursday, which will lay her up for a short time. The Day Star was put into order for work and inspected and last evening left Providence for Bridgeport to take the place of the disabled steamer until repairs are made.

Major W. J. Twining, of the United States Engineer Corps, died in Washington yesterday afternoon. He was an officer of high character and distinguished ability and served with distinction during the late war on General Schofield's staff. After the war he was instructor at West Point and later a commissioner on the northwestern boundary. He was appointed, by President Grant, the engineer member of the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia, and held that position at the time of his death.

The Senate Friday adopted Mr. Windom's resolution authorizing an investigation of the alleged corruption in connection with the extension of liquor bonds. The court of appeals bill was further discussed, and an adjournment taken until Monday. The House closed the general debate on the tariff commission bill, and the first was read for amendment. Debate will not be permitted except on bona fide amendments. An evening session was held for the consideration of pension bills, forty-five of which were passed.

PROVIDENCE AND NEWPORT.

The relations between these two chief cities of Rhode Island are such that the citizens of each are deeply interested in the means of inter-communication. Formerly the only method of public travel was the slow and uncertain sailing vessels that plied on our waters. Then appeared the single steamboat, and we all remember the old Perry that so long and so faithfully served us. Next came the Old Colony railroad with its connections, and last of all the Wickford Steamboat and Railroad Company, so that we now have three routes of travel by steam; certainly a great improvement over old times and one which none of our people can fail to enjoy.

Our attention is called to this matter at the present time by the opening of the spring arrangement of the Continental Steamboat Company, which with its predecessor, the American Steamboat Company, has done so much for our comfort and convenience. This company has the finest and fastest boats that run on our eastern inland waters. They are well manned and equipped throughout, and offer numerous attractions as pleasure boats as well as for the transportation of freight. If the company has made any mistake in its business it has been in giving us larger and more costly steamers than the business would warrant, but this is something with which the public will find no fault.

These steamers need no introduction to our readers. They are all well known, and it is enough now to say that each boat is put in perfect order for the summer and, as the season opens, reappears as fresh and beautiful as ever. Most of the old officers are at their posts and no better selections could have been made. They are uniformly attentive to passengers and faithful to the business which they have in hand.

The Continental Steamboat Company is organized as follows:—William S. Shiter, president; C. F. Mason, treasurer; N. F. Hallett, superintendent, and B. Buffum, secretary.

THE ARCTIC EXPLORERS.

The mystery connected with the unfortunate Jeannette expedition is now in a great measure cleared. The latest discoveries reveal a sad ending of what was a most promising beginning. There has been no doubt for some time that Commander DeLong and his companions had fallen victims to the hardships of the climate and the perils of polar navigation. The worst fears are now confirmed as the bodies of the exploring party have been discovered. The brave men were frozen and starved to death, and their well-preserved bodies are now found by Lieutenant Melville and his party. The papers of the expedition are also found in a good state of preservation and these will doubtless throw much light on the history of the terrible affair.

There is another boat's crew as yet unheard from though there is no room for hope that they will be found alive. It is supposed that this boat was capsized in a gale and all on board lost. The facts are briefly recapitulated as follows:—

The Jeannette was crushed by the ice June 12th, 1881, and sank the following day. After retreating in three small boats for some weeks the party became separated. Engineer Melville, who had charge of the surviving crew, reached land September 17th. The party in the captain's boat consisted of Commander DeLong, Dr. Ambler, Mr. Collins, Nindemann, Erickson, Gurtz, Noros, Dressler, Iverson, Kaach, Boyd, Lee, Ah Sam, Alexei. The second boat, of which there is as yet no trace, had eight men, as follows:—DeLong, Lieutenant Chipp, Dunbar, Sweetman, Starr, Warren, Kuehne, Johnsen, Sharwell.

The surviving crew that reached Yakutsk, December 17, 1881, consisted of Engineer Melville, Lieutenant Danenhower, Coles, Newcomb, Leach, Mansen, Wilson, Bartlett, Lauterbach, Steward, Aneguin. This party learned of Captain DeLong's probable position through Noros and Ninderman, who had been sent out for food, and they have now found the remains of the party as already stated.

There will be universal regret and deep mourning over the terrible calamity. Some of the unfortunate officers have friends connected with the government service in this city. In honor of the noble DeLong and his brave companions the Daily News has placed its flag at half mast and we learn that similar expressions of sorrow appear in all parts of the country. It is in fact a national calamity, though the expedition itself was the result of private munificence on the part of one of our own summer residents. Later particulars will be looked for with interest.

REAR ADMIRAL RODGERS.

Rear Admiral John Rodgers, who has been suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys, for several weeks, died at his residence in Washington last evening. Mr. Rodgers was appointed midshipman from the District of Columbia in 1828, and has been in active service continually since his appointment. In 1829 he was attached to the frigate Constellation and in 1853 was given the command of the surveying and exploring expedition to the Northern and China seas. At the breaking out of the rebellion he was in the West, superintending the construction of the Benton ironclad.

In 1862 he began his fighting career, being attached to the North Atlantic squadron in command of the Galena. In May of that year he was ordered to go up the James river to Richmond. He successfully entered the river, but was obliged to retire when his ammunition gave out. In the engagement the Galena bore the brunt of the battle and was struck one hundred and twenty-nine times. Captain Rodgers was next appointed to the command of the monitor Weehawken and with this vessel captured the rebel ram Atalanta, a much heavier vessel than his own. In 1867 he was in command of the Boston navy yard, and in 1869 he was appointed rear admiral. In 1870-72 he commanded the Asiatic squadron, and was active in the bombardment of the Corean forts. Lately he has been superintendent of the naval observatory in Washington, which position he held at the time of his death.

Admiral Rodgers is the brother-in-law of George Tiffany and August Belmont, having married the daughter of Commodore Matthew C. Perry.

A new kind of bomb has been invented at the Krupp cannon foundry. The explosion of these new missiles, it is said, owing to their mechanical arrangements and the materials which they contain, will be equal to torpedoes. At the same works a new cannon has been tested. It is mounted upon a pivot provided with machinery which absolutely does away which the rebound or "kicking." The cannon, moreover, is so fashioned that, notwithstanding its heavy calibre, it can be mounted upon the smallest gunboats.

BLOCK ISLAND.

At a regular meeting of Tuckisna Lodge, No. 13, Independent Order of Good Templars, held last Tuesday evening, the following named officers were duly installed in their respective positions for the ensuing quarter, the Rev. W. A. Durfee acting as Deputy Grand W. C. T., Fred Cahoone as G. W. S., and F. S. Mussard as M.:—

There was a large attendance, and after the installation services short addresses were made by the installing officer and others. Mrs. Hadley, Mrs. Mitchell and Mr. Massard rendered some vocal music, and the first named lady was the recipient of a bouquet.

GREEN-ROOM FUN.

Salsbury's Troubadours appeared at the Opera House last evening in a new piece written for them by Bronson Howard and entitled "Green-Room Fun." This piece is inferior to "The Brook" in which this troupe has made such a hit, and does not give the actors so good an opportunity to show their abilities. The play relates the experience of a number of church people who are anxious to get up some amateur theatricals for the benefit of some charity, and who engage an old professional actor to direct and manage the performance. The piece has very many amusing incidents, but on the whole is weak.

Mr. Salsbury, the professional, has the best part and acts it as he always acts. Miss Nellie McHenry sustains her reputation as one of the best soubrettes on the stage but her part does not give her scope enough to exhibit her abilities. Mr. John Gourlay as the Rev. Ernest Duckworth, makes a hit of his part as he does everything he attempts, but he as well as the others is somewhat hampered with the few good points for fine acting. He nevertheless acts and sings as few others can. Miss Ray Samuels pleased the audience with her singing. The audience was amused with the play, but it is doubtful if they were highly edified. The Troubadours have evidently made a mistake in taking this new piece in preference to the Brook, which, though old, is decidedly better than "Green-room Fun."

THE COLONEL TONIGHT.

The above play will be produced at the Opera House this evening. "The Colonel" comes here with a Boston Museum and New York reputation. It was an immense success in Boston having had a run of six weeks. As generally known the play is intended as a satire upon the much-satirized "aesthetic craze." "The Colonel" is an exceedingly bright and clever comedy and the company is well qualified to bring out its merits. Many of the episodes in the play are of an extremely ludicrous character, and there is abundance of fresh and genuine wit in the lines. It is one of the best comedies produced this season and the dialogue fairly scintillates with bright points. Mr. George Holland, favorably known here, as having played at the Casino last season in "After the Opera," assumes the title role. He is an actor of good ability and is ably supported by his company. There is more genuine wit and happy thought in "The Colonel" than in "Patience." The advance sale of seats is large, showing that the house will be well filled by an appreciative audience.

MR. BENNETT'S YACHT.

Mr. James Gordon Bennett's new steam yacht Namouna, which is now taking in stores for a voyage to the Mediterranean, is the only vessel bearing that name, made familiar by the genius of Alfred de Musset to all lovers of French literature. The Namouna of the Persian mythology is briefly described in Brewer's "Dictionary of Phrase and Fable" as "an enchantress born long before any other created thing, yet, still as young and beautiful as ever." The Namouna is to arrive at Washington next Monday, and President Arthur has been invited to take pleasure trips in her up and down the Potomac, by her proud owner.

Thursday morning Mr. Bennett took a party of friends to Newburgh by train, in order to bring them back on board of the Namouna the same evening. The trial trip of the new yacht showed that the draught of her furnaces was insufficient to generate as much steam as she could carry, and in order to remedy this her funnel has been lengthened four feet. It was intended to leave Newburgh at 4 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, but some necessary preparations delayed the departure until evening. Mr. Bennett's guests beguiled the interval by inspecting and admiring the interior fittings of the yacht, on board which a handsome collation was served, and they were also entertained by the successful launch of an iron ferry-boat, from the yard of Ward & Stanton, the builders of the Namouna. Among the party were Mrs. Boardman and Mrs. Emery, of Boston, Mr. Charles Longfellow, son of the poet, who is expected to be a guest of Mr. Bennett during the coming voyage of the yacht; Mr. Sam Ward, Mr. Paul Dana, Mr. G. G. Howland, Mr. Henry Steers, Mr. F. M. Crawford, Mr. Van Buren and Captain Purcell.

A CHINESE MURDER CASE.

A horrible story is told in a recent number of the Pekin Gazette. There was a young man of so bad a disposition that his father compelled him to fen-chia (set up a separate establishment). One day the old man came to his son's house intending to pawn one of the young man's coats to gamble with. The son refused, objecting also to give him a pair of stockings he had asked for. On this the father threatened to complain to the authorities of the son's unfilial conduct, and marched off for that purpose; the son followed him, armed with a jar, with which he hit his parent over the head. The old man retaliated with a bill-hook, but was soon overpowered and killed. The son then stripped the corpse, and rolling the blood-stained clothes up into a bundle, took them home and hid them under the floor of his room. The corpse being found, it was supposed that the old man had been murdered, and the affair passed off; but one day the murderer got drunk, and told his wife the whole story. The woman, fearing that discovery might lead to her being implicated, accused her husband to the authorities, and he is now sentenced to undergo the "slow and ignominious" process of being gradually cut in pieces.

THE THIRD DAY OF THE FESTIVAL.

The rainy April weather of the day gave place this evening to fair, so that waterproofs and dripping umbrellas did not cumber the attendants at the festival, nor the thought of them deter many from coming to hear Handel's great oratorio, "Israel in Egypt." No; the hall was filled with as large an audience as has yet been present. The chorus completely occupied the immense stage and made a most imposing array of singers. Before the performance began, over the audience rolled waves of conversation, sounding like the breaking of the billows upon a sandy beach. This changed to applause as the solo singers appeared on the scene, each receiving recognition according to popularity. Miss Osgood, who was prevented from singing Tuesday evening, on account of illness was sufficiently recovered to take her part in the oratorio. She sang with great purity of voice and clearness, filling the hall much better than it was feared she would be able to. Mr. Candidus won for himself additional laurels in his solo and the duet with Miss Winant, who sang in Miss Cary's place. The latter has not yet been able to appear, though it is thought she may attain sufficient control of her voice to sing tomorrow. Miss Winant has done admirably. If her style were broader, she might very nearly equal Miss Cary. Mr. Remmertz and Mr. Whitney were very successful in the duet, "The Lord is a Man of War." These, with Miss Sobell, who sang a duet with Mrs. Osgood charmingly, made a very satisfactory set of soloists.

The chorus was magnificent. It included five societies, the great Handel and Haydn Society from Boston, the Philadelphia, Baltimore, Brooklyn and New York societies, numbering in all three thousand singers. They, with the grand orchestra of three hundred, were worthy of the task of singing one of the greatest oratorios ever written. Each portion took up the work assigned to it like one voice. The audience commenced early to show its appreciation, and applauded vigorously. Mr. Thomas, after having repeated one chorus, turned around to the audience, when it demanded to hear again the great "Hailstone Chorus," which always has to be sung twice, and announced that, owing to the length of the program, this would be the last selection repeated. He was obliged, however, to relent when Messrs. Whitney and Remmertz gave their duet. Take it all in all, the Handel night has not been surpassed in interest by any concert yet given, and those who attended will hear for a long time in memory the wonderful, weird, grand chorus of that miraculous oratorio, "Israel in Egypt."—[Providence Journal.

DELONG'S FAMILY.

Captain Walton and wife, the parents of Mrs. DeLong, live in New York and when a reporter of the Tribune called on them this evening the news of the finding of DeLong's party had not reached them. In a pleasant parlor hung with a portrait of the Jeannette and a photograph of DeLong when leaving the Naval Academy, the reporter conversed with the several members of the family on DeLong's domester character, and his hopes and plans on reaching the North Pole. William C. Walton, a brother of Mrs. DeLong, said:—"My sister was married in 1871, and spent considerable time with her husband, once on the monitor Lehigh in Port Royal Harbor, again two years, when he was in charge of the schoolship St. Mary's. She went to Europe with him when he was detailed to take the Jeannette from London to Havre, where it received the name of Mr. Bennett's sister. Leaving Havre on July 15, 1878, the ship reached San Francisco after a voyage of 165 days. Mrs. DeLong has often said that the six months spent on the Jeannette were the happiest of her life. She has a little girl named Sybold, now ten years old, who spent much of her time on deck with her father. After arriving in San Francisco the father and mother went on board the ship and remained a week. In February, 1879, Mr. DeLong came to this city, and in this room concluded most of his arrangements for his voyage. Here Melville Williams, having been called from China, went on the Jeannette at DeLong's earnest request. Chipp and Danenhower were also personal friends of DeLong and the crew were of his own selection. None knew better than he the danger which he was to encounter, but his wife never despaired of his return. She wrote me yesterday, saying that she was expecting to come East in a few weeks, but her daughter has the measles now. She said she had endeavored to keep strong in order to be prepared to nurse her husband when he should return. She wanted to go to St. Petersburg to meet him, but we feared the journey would be too much for her. I do not know whether she will come to New York, but Mrs. Danenhower has invited her to come to Washington to meet Lieutenant Danenhower on his return."—[New York Tribune, 6th.

DARWIN AT HOME.

A great peal of laughter fills the modest house at Down. Not one of those sharp metallic cachinnations which jar on the ear and set the teeth on edge, nor one of those dry wooden rattlings, like the crackling of thorns under a pot, nor yet the loud laugh which speaks the vacant mind, but a rich Homeric laugh, round and full, musical and jocund—a laugh to remember. The outburst of merriment proceeds from the recluse of Down, infinitely amused to hear that, while he has been watching the tendrils of the vine and examining the predatory habits of the sundew, the microscope of the world has been focussed upon the great observer himself; that, without going through the preliminary process of pinning him to a cork like a cockchafer, he has been a marked man for some time past, that when he has imagined himself most secure at the pleasant house of his friend, Dr. Farr, discussing the light and exhilarating subject of vital statistics, the same penetrating orb was still fixed upon him, that in the little garden where he cultivated his plants for experiment, "observation with extended view" was at his elbow. "It is better so," says Mr. Darwin, "than to be interviewed and harassed with questions which cannot be answered without some appearance of vanity. Moreover, it strikes me as not proper that a man should communicate anything to the author of a biographical notice. He should behave as if already dead."

Mr. Darwin, like his friend Sir Joseph Hooker, is an instance of hereditary transmission of peculiar characteristics. He is third of his family in direct descent who have been Fellows of the Royal Society. It is his fate, like that of many other celebrated men, to be best known by the works which he would himself hardly assign the highest rank among his many productions. The popular mind, smitten with a taste for a smattering of science, naturally pounces most eagerly upon those scientific works which approach the borderland of speculation, and has thus done him but scant justice; the hurrying and blundering million not pausing to distinguish between those statements which he puts forward as matters of fact, ascertained, beyond all possibility of doubt, by experiment, and the hypotheses with which admirable caution he sometimes bases upon them.

His work covers an immense area of thought, extending over zoology, botany and geology, in each of which he has made the mark of an original and powerful mind enriched by long research. The bulk of work of this kind conveys but the dimmest idea of the toil involved in the collection of the material, and spent in experiment and observation. In actual writing, Dr. Darwin works on a plan of his own, in very short spells—never exceeding a couple of hours—and never commenced until the evidence has been carefully collected, arranged and duly pondered over.

In one respect, despite his vexatious attacks of illness, Mr. Darwin must be considered a fortunate man. During the whole of his life he has been in easy circumstances, above the toil of earning an income. Unlike many philosophers, he has not had the mortification of spending his best hours in the drudgery of official routine or the hardly less wearisome task of teaching. He had been able to devote his entire time to his favorite pursuits, and since his marriage with his cousin, Miss Emma Hedgwood, has resided at Down, amid the rich and varied scenery of one of the prettiest parts of Kent. As his numerous family has grown up around him he has been relieved from all the cares which distract the scientific worker in the heat and turmoil of active life. He leads a truly calm and philosophic existence, unvexed by the contemplation of weekly bills and the signing of checks. In his wife and family he is specially happy, being spared the pain of degenerate offspring. His eldest son, William Darwin, is a banker in Southampton; the second, George, took his honors at Cambridge, and is now a Fellow of Trinity; the third, Frank, who has inherited his father's ill health, acts as his secretary; the fourth, Leonard, is an officer of the artillery, and distinguished himself as one of the scientific corps sent to observe the transit of Venus; the fifth, Horace, is an excellent mathematician. One married and one unmarried daughter complete a family whose constant care is to relieve its head of all possible trouble and anxiety.

Thus, free from the disturbing influences of the world, he can well afford to treat with admirable good humor the attacks of scientific opponents, and the jokes of ignorant folk incapable of understanding either his books or himself. When young he pursued field sports with the combined interest of the hunter and the naturalist; but of late years he has found his chief relaxation in reading the popular novels of the day, feeling like Auguste Comte, that the scientific bow requires frequent unbending. In the treatment of books and specimens he resembles Mr. Carlyle—caring nothing for them when read or thoroughly investigated. It is, perhaps, hardly too much to say that no man has exercised a more powerful influence on the study of natural history since Aristotle himself.—[London Truth.

A circus elephant stepped through a baby carriage in Harrisburg the other day. The carriage was wrecked, but the elephant wasn't hurt. It is interesting to know that there is one living creature that can collide with one of the infernal things without getting shag heels over head, and having the hide scraped off his shins.

A customer of the bank of France was recently going down the steps with five thousand francs of gold in a handkerchief, when the handkerchief broke and the money went rolling over the sidewalk among the crowd. The bystanders helped him pick the money up, and every coin was returned to its owner. It would not be safe to meet with a like accident on Wall street.

It is well we cannot see into the future. Fancy the disgust of Pizarro if he could have foreseen Shipherd and his guano claim.—[Syracuse Herald.

Liver, Kidney and Bright's Disease.

A medicine that destroys the germ or cause of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Complaints, and has power to root them out of the system, is above all price. Such a medicine is Hop Bitters, and positive proof of this can be found by one trial, or by asking your neighbors, who have been cured by it.

THE JEANNETTE PARTY.

The Sad Story of the Parting.

The Last That Was Seen of DeLong Alive.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

NEW YORK, May 6.—The following is the New York Herald's latest despatch:—"A letter, dated Irkutsk, March 2, gives interesting details of the search for Captain DeLong and his party. When the captain decided to send Noros and Ninderman ahead, the food had been quite exhausted, and the party existed on brandy. Noros thinks it was on a Sunday when they left. The captain had held divine service, the men being seated on the banks of the river. After the service he called the two men and told them he wanted them to push on ahead and that he would follow with his party. "If you find game", were his last words, "then return to us, if you do not then go to Kumak Surka."

Noros thus describes the parting:—The captain read divine service before we left, all the men shook hands with us, and most of them had tears in their eyes. Collins was the last to speak. He simply said, "Noros, when you get to New York remember me." They seemed to have lost hope, but as we left they gave us three cheers. We told them we would do all that we could do. And that was the last we saw of them. Such is Noros's story of the last seen of Captain DeLong and his suffering party.

THE PRICE OF BEEF.

The Hartford Courant closes an article referring to the rise in the price of beef, with the following practical improvement:—

The New England farmer ought to note down one point from the present state of things, when it occurs to him that if he had a lot of cattle, with beef at 28 and 35 cents at retail, he would find them a very profitable article to sell. That point is that if he had only raised them he would have them. He has given up too soon on a number of lines, which, if pursued, would have paid well; and he hasn't the general reputation of lacking either grit or shrewdness. Live stock is beginning again to prove that, though it cost to raise it, it is worth having. Horses, which farmers had come to think were not worth raising, have in the past two or three years risen so that those few people who had them to sell have made handsome profits from them. So it is now with cattle and other meat products. If the New England farmers had kept at it raising them they would be in clover today. Out of it all comes the lesson that the world doesn't change so much as it seems to, and that patient application to work that is based on the known needs of mankind is likely in the end to pay. There is, too, a lesson of the protective sort in the present state of the beef market. If we had cultivated beef when apparently it did not pay, we should not today be so much at the mercy of any distant circumstances, whether weather, immigrants or speculators.

THE HEAD OF GUITEAU.

The medical mind of America is still, it would seem, agitated about the physico-mental condition of Guiteau, the miserable assassin of President Garfield. It is one of the anomalies of advanced civilization operating on different nationalities even of the same race, that whereas the people of the United States apparently press forward more rapidly, and think, and feel and act more intensely—and perhaps more impulsively—than we do, they prolong their impressions and experiences, while we hurry and curtail them.

Had the miscreant now languishing in America under a conviction for murder been a condemned prisoner in England, he would have been hanged and forgotten some time ago.

We do not aver that ours is the better mode of procedure, but it is at least remarkable that the "old" and the "slow" people should be the most expeditious, and the community that invented lynching should be the most tardy, in avenging its insults and putting an end to its ignominies.

We fail to recognize the slightest scientific interest in the case of Guiteau, who is a mean scamp, of the most commonplace type and character. A recent number of the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal contains an able critique on the medico-psychological features of Guiteau's personality. It is, however, remarkable for the singular circumstance that the author, Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton seems to claim the fact that the head of the assassin "reveals no special asymmetry" as evidence of his sanity, whereas asymmetry is well known to be one of the commonest characteristics of heads of the best and most intellectual type.

It would be difficult probably to find a head belonging to any man of mark or pre-eminence in science or literature which was not asymmetric.

The line of reasoning which Dr. Hamilton pursues is as untenable as that which a while ago found so much favor with our medico-psychologists, who, claiming errors of spelling in caligraphy as a symptom of mental disease, were logically forced back on the correlation that correct orthography must be an evidence of sanity, in forgetfulness, or more probably ignorance of the fact that the errors of functions which occur in disease are fruits of dissolution, and therefore in no sense symptoms. We strongly recommend our scientific friends across the Atlantic to abandon the discussion of Guiteau's case. There is nothing to discuss except his nation's folly in making him its hero even for a moment.—[London Lancet.

AN INFANT PHENOMENON.

Once in a thousand years or so there appears on earth a child phenomenon seemingly produced by nature as a sample of what she expects to do constantly a few million years hence. Such a one is a boy painter by the name of DeWitt Lockman, ten years old in years and a hundred in knowledge. He was kept a year on black and white by his teacher, at which he fretted and fumed in his anxiety to grasp color. When once he placed a palette on his thumb, he began to show what was in him. Within a few days he has painted a horse, a study from life, with a precision of touch and absolute truth of color, a boldness and freedom that would excite admiration if it were proved to be the work of an old and experienced artist. Beard, on first seeing it, was struck speechless with surprise. He says there are not three men in the country who can paint such a picture of a horse. The boy is a handsome, curley-pated little piece of mischief with black eyes luminous with the fire of genius. In fact, he is the only real genius of my acquaintance. His parents are not educating him physically as they should. He rides to and from the studio, and is the object of as much watchful care as if he were a delicate parian statuette that might fall from its pedestal and break to pieces. What he needs is to rough it in the streets with the hardiest boys and come home with a black eye at least once a week. Under such scholastic training there is a chance of his pulling through, although it did not save Sanford, that boy phenomenon, to whom the Differential Calculus was A B C, and Latin and Greek mere fairy stories.—[New York Correspondence Louisville Courier-Journal.

In a recent analysis of twenty-nine samples of quinine pills and capsules not one contained the amount of that article called for by the label, though some of them came near it. In two instances the so-called quinine proved to be cinchonida, one of the lower and weaker alkaloids from cinchona bark. It is important, especially in fevers, that the quality, quantity and strength of quinine should be unimpeachable.

"What part," asked a Sunday school teacher, "of the burial of Sir John Moore do you like best?" The boy was thoughtful for a moment and then replied, "Few and short were the prayers we said."—[Ex.

A distinguished physician says alcohol has killed more people than the yellow fever. Perhaps it wouldn't if yellow fever had a fair show.—[Boston Post.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

RACINE, Wis., May 6.—A terrible fire has been raging here. The city is almost entirely in ashes. Fifteen acres of ground have been burned over. The loss is estimated as high as $13,000,000. At 12 o'clock this noon the engines were playing on the fire which was still raging.

CHANGING POPULARITY OF GAMES.

Games have districts, like other things, where these are used or where those are not introduced. A concern in this state formerly made twenty-five or thirty thousand sets of croquet in a year. None are made by this firm today. The shutting down of some croquet manufactories is not due wholly to the lack of demand. Competition has helped. The better sets of croquet are not in so good demand as the cheaper ones. Those who bought the high-priced ones buy now lawn tennis, so that the better manufactories have little encouragement to continue. On the cheaper they cannot compete.

In Maine and other places very cheap croquet sets are turned out in the winter at very light cost. Some come from green wood, and when the croquet implements become seasoned mallets will have crooked handles, balls will be flat, because they will shrink only across the grain, and will check and split. The best balls were made of the wood that surrounded and held knots. Therefore the cheap croquet sets spoilt the trade for better ones, and those who made the latter turned to something else.

The game that leads this year and the one that is making friends every day is lawn tennis. Manufacturers are making fifty per cent. more lawn tennis implements than they were last year. The demand for them has increased everywhere, and Pawtucket factories, of which there are three, find quick sales for all they can make. Probably one hundred workmen in Pawtucket and Central Falls are engaged in the manufacture of lawn tennis and other games. The price is reduced so that all persons are accommodated. Making the game general may help its advance for a time, but when "everybody" plays lawn tennis, then some new game must be discovered for those who took tennis at its height of price.—[Providence Journal.

AN ENTERPRISING WOMAN.

Mrs. Miriam Florence Leslie, the well-known publisher, has, upon application to the courts of New York, had her name changed to Frank Leslie, the name her husband bore. It was not a mere whim with her, but a business idea, as she wished to perpetuate the name of the Frank Leslie publishing house of which she is now proprietor and manager. Every morning she is found in her office by 8.30 o'clock, and remains till 5 o'clock in the afternoon. She signs all checks and money orders, makes all contracts for supplies of every sort, looks over the proofs of all articles before they are published, and makes suggestions concerning the make-up of every periodical before it is sent to press. In a word, she is the head of the whole establishment. In Mrs. Leslie's employ are over 400 people, comprising artists, engravers, editors, compositors, etc., and 13 different periodicals are issued.

COTTON MANUFACTURE AT THE SOUTH.

The latest evidence of Southern enterprise in cotton manufacturing is that the incorporators of the Knoxville, Tenn., cotton mills recently fixed the capital stock at $250,000, of which $105,000 was subscribed by leading citizens within half an hour. Action of this character is doubtless stimulated by the reports of the handsome profits realized by the Georgia cotton mills, amounting as per published statements, to 20 per cent. on the capital stock. Possibly another incentive may be found in the sentiment expressed in Congress by Senator Brown, of Georgia, who, claiming that $300,000,000 must be raised to "run the Government" prefers to have it all collected by duties on imports, and these so arranged as to protect the manufacturing industries of the country.

NO GAZELLES NEED APPLY.

As a result of the publication of an article in these columns some time ago, a perfect deluge of letters has been turned loose upon the office from women all over the country who evidently mistook the drift of the editorial pen upon Wyoming's want. Wyoming wants women, and wants them bad, but there is no very clamorous demand for sentimental fossils who want a bonanza for a husband and a pass from the effete East. This paragraph probably puts the kibosh on about 75 per cent. of those who have written us so far. We want to discourage the immigration of a large majority of those who have written us on this subject. They are too fresh and too yearning in their nature. There is not such a mad rush at present for blank-verse makers as there is for women of sound sense who can make a pie that will not taste like a stove lid veneered with cod liver oil. In using these cruel words, we do it in order to silence this ubiquitous howl on the part of these modest violets who expect to get off the train here and meet a confirmed invalid at the depot with a carriage and a marriage license. The old man with the hectic flush and a life insurance policy of $150,000 is not at present ransacking the four corners of the globe for a little rosebud 39 years old who don't know enough to boil a tea kettle. The young lady who thinks that the men of the West don't know the genuine article when they see it is laboring under a temporary delusion. Of course, the men who live in Wyoming are heathen as a class, and let their hair grow long and deserve the pity and commiseration of more cultivated people, but they would need a good deal more genuine sympathy if they were linked for all time with some of the timid gazelles who have written us on this subject.—[Laramie Boomerang.

Joseph Gertier last December was a dealer in geese in Vienna, and found that his business was not at all a lucrative one. It seems that the Christmas goose is not an esteemed dainty in Vienna. On the 9th of December, the day after the burning of the Ring Theatre, Gertier's wife ran about the street where they lived as though distracted, crying that her husband had not returned home the night before; that he had a gallery ticket given to him on the preceding day, and that he must have been burned to death. The woman's despair was so great, her misery so obvious, that the committee for the relief of the victims sent her 200 florins, and she was to receive a yearly income of 360 florins for herself, and for each of her children 6000 florins were deposited in the bank. There was hardly a family in the neighborhood of the Gertiers which did not wish that its head had received a free pass on the eventful night. But all of a sudden the Gertier family's dream of bliss was disturbed. The police of Vienna received an anonymous letter from a small Hungarian village, containing the news that Joseph Gertier was living there in great comfort. Betty Gertier was immediately arrested, and confessed that she and her husband had concocted the plot on that terrible night which destroyed the happiness of so many families.—[Boston Advertiser.

AN INTERESTING ACCOUNT!

Stone in the Bladder Expelled by Using Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy."

Mr. S. W. Hicks, of Pleasant Valley, Dutchess Co., N. Y., the son of Mr. B. S. Hicks, whose name may have appeared in this Journal in connection with an article similar to this, was, like his father afflicted with Stone in the Bladder, only that his case was more serious than his father's. On the appearance of the disease the father advised the son to write to Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who, he said, would tell him what to do. Dr. Kennedy replied, suggesting the use of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy," which had worked so successfully in the father's case. Mr. Hicks, who had been assured by the local physicians that they could do nothing more for him, tried "Favorite Remedy" at a venture. After two weeks' use of it he passed a stone ⅜ of an inch long and of the thickness of a pipe-stem. Since then he has had no symptoms of the return of the trouble. Here is a sick man healed. What better results could have been expected? What greater benefit could medical science confer? The end was gained; that is surely enough. Dr. Kennedy assures the public, by a reputation which he cannot afford to forfeit or imperil, that the "Favorite Remedy" does invigorate the Blood, cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder complaints, as well as all those diseases and weaknesses peculiar to females. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

A CASE OF IMAGINATION.

It is a well established fact that the mind has a direct and important action upon the body, and to a much greater extent than persons in general suppose. During the prevalence of an epidemic, for instance, such as the cholera, thousands become afflicted through their own fancy who would otherwise escape the fell destroyer. We remember when this scourge was last upon us of hearing several individuals spoken of as likely to perish with the disease, for the simple reason that they were constantly in dread and fear of it; and we noted the fact that these same persons rarely lived out the season; while on the other hand, those who seemed to care little about it, and in some cases scoffed at and defied it, were seldom touched by the invisible foe.

No one can tell what the mind is, or how it acts upon the body; but we have constant evidence of its presence and power, through one of its attributes, the will; and we are sometimes astonished at its increased force, when stimulated by passion or fear.

In a conversation with a distinguished physician of our acquaintance upon this subject, he related a case of the striking effect of imagination, or mind upon body, which came under his own observation while a student at a hospital. A lecture by one of the faculty, touching upon imagination and its strange effects, became a subject of discussion in his class; and the question shortly arose whether it was not rather the body that affected the mind than the mind the body.

"I contend," said one, "that the body first becomes affected by some morbid influence and the mind, of course, takes its tone therefrom."

"I maintain," said another, "that the mind may be first affected and so impair the body, as in cases of mental excitement, such as grief, joy, horror, shame, chagrin and disappointment."

The students took sides on the question and the matter was ably argued pro and con, each party about equally maintaining its assumed position.

In all questions of a nature permitting a strong argument on either side, it is fair to presume that both parties have truth for a foundation and neither has the whole truth; and so it was in this case—the fact being that the mind does affect the body and the body the mind.

But something more than argument was wanted in this case;—medical students like to try experiments, and witness practical demonstrations; and it was finally agreed that a perfectly healthy subject should be selected and put under the effects of imagination. A young, robust, rosy-cheeked farmer, who occasionally came into the town to dispose of his fruit, and who had found some of his best customers among the students, was finally fixed upon as an individual every way satisfactory for the trial. The plan was for some of the students, at different times and in different places, without any appearance of collusion, to be struck with his altered looks, to perceive some secret malady beginning to affect him, and, finally, to predict his death at a given time.

With this understanding they went deliberately to work the next time he appeared among them. Some three or four of them sauntered out to his cart, from which he was selling apples, and each, as he came up, took a long and unusual stare at him, as if suddenly discovering something very peculiar; and then all seemed to consult together in a very serious manner, occasionally glancing at him with looks of pity verging on alarm.

"How are you today, Mr. Bassett?" at length inquired one of the party, in a grave, quiet tone, with a look of commiseration; while the others crowded up, stared hard in his face, and seemed anxious for his answer.

"I'm right well, I thank you," replied Bassett, with a pleasant smile; "how do you find yourself? I've got some good eating apples here, gentlemen—the same kind as you liked so well before."

"How old are you, my friend?" pursued the one who had first addressed him, still looking him steadily and seriously in the eye.

"Going on twenty-four."

"Just the age, too," remarked the other to his companion, in a low tone, which Bassett overheard, as was intended he should. "Are you married?" he inquired, turning again to the young farmer.

"No, not yet, exactly," laughed Bassett.

"Intend to be, I suppose?"

"Well—perhaps, some time or other, if I live."

"Very well put in—if you live!" returned the questioner, with solemn emphasis.

For the first time the young farmer looked at the speaker in some surprise.

"Why, what do you mean by that—if I live?" he inquired.

"Is it best to tell him?" said the student in a low tone, addressing his companion.

"It may be as well," replied another; "it can alter nothing, you know, Wheatley; and he may have some preparations to make."

"Ah! here comes Dr. Giles—a very shrewd observer; let me see if he notices anything first," observed Wheatley, glancing at another student, who was leisurely approaching.

"Well, boys, how are the apples today?" said the new comer, in a light tone, as he drew near.

He glanced at the apple dealer as he spoke, gave a start, stopped suddenly, and then looked inquiringly at the others, who maintained an ominous silence.

"Heaven!" he exclaimed; "it is so! And so young!"

"Is what so?" rather seriously inquired Bassett, on whom the manner of the whole group had begun to make a marked impression.

"I was about to tell him," said Wheatley to Giles, in a confidential tone; "but seeing you approach, I thought I would wait and see if your observation confirmed it."

"A clear case—I saw it at a glance!" replied Giles. "What a pity! And he in such apparent good health."

Then the five students drew back and mysteriously conferred together.

"Does he suspect nothing?" the farmer overheard Giles inquire.

"Nothing whatever; and even announced himself as feeling in his usual health," answered Wheatley.

Giles lifted his hands with a look of commiseration, and muttered, as if to himself:—

"Poor fellow! poor fellow! It will be a hard blow to him and his family."

Nothing of this was lost on Bassett, who began to grow restless and uneasy.

"What's the matter?" he then inquired, looking from one to another. "Do you see anything queer about me?"

"Tell him yourself, doctor," said Wheatley.

"Some one should," returned Giles, "but I wish the task had not devolved on me. One must do his duty, however."

He then went up to the young farmer and solemnly asked him if he felt well—perfectly well—and if he had any particular fear of death.

"What do you say all this to me for?" returned the other, turning somewhat pale and looking frightened.

"Because we see the seeds of death in you," said Giles, "and know you cannot live over a week from today—from this hour, in fact."

"Gracious heavens! What is it? What's the matter with me?" cried the other, in alarm, turning still more pale and beginning to tremble in every limb.

"You have that secret but fatal malady known in the olden time as the plague—a disease again revived, and now going about the country, baffling all attempts of the most scientific physicians to master it. It is always preceded by peculiar spots on the skin, such as we see on yours and kills on the seventh day, if not sooner. You will further be assured of it by a certain pain about the region of the heart—such as, if I am not mistaken, you feel now. How is it? Am I not right?"

"I believe I do feel kind of queer here," replied the frightened farmer, putting his hands to his breast and shuddering.

"Of course you do. Come, gentlemen, take pity on him and purchase his apples, so that he can go home and arrange all his affairs before he has his first attack of delirium."

"Can't you do anything for me? Ain't there no hope?" whined the now terrified fellow, with big drops of perspiration wrung out by mental agony, standing over his face and brow.

"We can't do anything for you now," said Giles; "but Dr. Copple of our hospital fancies he has discovered a cure. We shall know tomorrow—for he is in the meantime to try the remedy on a patient not far from here; and should he succeed we will come to you on the day after tomorrow with his secret. Meanwhile, go home, and if you feel weak, go to bed, and if cold see that you are well covered. Do not apply to any other physician or take any medicine of any kind till I see you. I will come at the time set and let you know your fate for a certainty. Try to keep up your spirits and hope for the best."

The students bought the poor fellow's apples at their own price, and he offered Giles all he was worth if he would come and cure him. He drove off in great alarm, feeling very weak, and complaining that the pain in his heart was increasing.

On the road beyond the village he met some more students, who looked at him in surprise and alarm, inquiring how he felt, and assured him he was very ill, and threatened with the plague—if, in fact, he had not got it already.

He finally reached home more dead than alive, informed his parents of what had occurred, took to his bed and gradually grew worse. In spite of his protestations they sent for a doctor; but it so happened that the latter was away on a consultation in a neighboring town, and did not return in time to see him the next day.

The day following, young Giles, with several others went to visit him and report upon the case. They found him with a high fever, covered with quilts, complaining of cold and intense anguish about the heart, and verging on delirium.

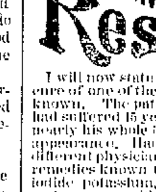

"Well, doctor," he gasped, looking wildly at the now alarmed student.

"You are saved," whispered the other. "Dr. Copple's remedy has already restored six dying patients. Here, take these pills; one every fifteen minutes; and in an hour your pains will leave you, and before night you will be well."

The man brightened at once and took four bread pills at intervals of ten minutes. In an hour, sure enough he was better, and before night he had left his bed, and was pronounced out of danger. The students had returned to town, satisfied with their experiment, and the next week Bassett was again at the hospital, selling them more apples. Then they told him the joke; and though inclined to be angry at first he finally joined them in a laugh against himself.

So much for the force of imagination.

Cuticura

THE NEW BLOOD PURIFIER
Resolvent

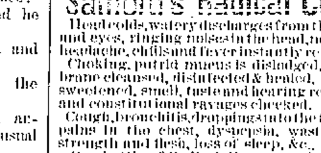

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin disease known. The patient is a man 40 years old; had suffered 15 years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of 12 different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $700 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally, and the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.
Reported by
F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.—Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.—Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my leg and both feet, which turned out to be eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT internally and CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever.
LES. M. FRAILEY, 61 South St., Baltimore.

CUTICURA.—The Cuticura treatment for the cure of Skin, Scalp and Blood Diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50c.; large boxes, $1.00. Cuticura Resolvent $1.00 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25c.; Cuticura Shaving Soap, 15c.

Winthrop Wrought-Iron Furnace!
Has been in use for the past seven years and given entire satisfaction. I offer it to the public as the most desirable furnace on the market. Special attention is called to the new dust-flue damper and revertible flues, that are not found in the other wrought-iron furnaces. The dust-flue damper prevents escape of dust when shaking down; the revertible flues cause the flames to sweep the entire surface of the wrought-iron drum, thereby securing much greater radiation of heat, and consequently a great saving in fuel. Cost less to keep in repair than any other furnaces. Are powerful heaters, with moderate consumption of coal. I have sold over 70 in this city. Sold by

A SPRING DEFENCE.
How to Repel the Assaults of Ill Health—Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy Means Something for You.
The months of March, April and May are the three successive arches of a bridge which connects the season of ice and sleet with that of leaves and roses. No less in respect of health than of outward natural phenomena is this true. Spring is a trying season for invalids, and particularly for those who either suffer, or are liable to suffer, from Biliousness, Kidney Complaints and Constipation of the Bowels, and for women who are chronically subject to any of the long catalogue of physical ailments to which the delicate sex is heir. Indications of disease in spring should be heeded at once. A fatal attack may result from neglect or a disordered condition of the bowels. The ounce of prevention may be had where tons of cure—or attempted cure—may be unavailing. Are you vexed or troubled in spring with indigestion, torpid or disordered liver, want of appetite, constipation, or a feverish state of the skin? If so, take without an hour's unnecessary delay Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY. No medicine is so harmless and yet so quick and positive in its action. It is Nature's own idea, condensed and made tangible by human skill. Do not leave home when going upon a journey without a bottle of it in your valise. You cannot possibly put one dollar in any other shape where it can render you so essential service. The FAVORITE REMEDY is almost INSTANTANEOUS in its action, but does not tear you to pieces with its violence nor nauseate you with disgust. It frees the Liver from Bile and sets the machinery of your body into normal and healthy operation. Remember, Dr. D. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY. Ask your druggist for it and take nothing else. Price One Dollar a bottle.
